CHARLES T. WILSON DEAD

Had Been in Failing Health for the Last Six Months.

BORN IN THIS COUNTY

Great Grandson of General Philip Benner of Revolutionary Fame—Deputy Sheriff of Centre County from 1854-1856

HE WAS OF SCOTCH--IRISH DESCENT

Charles T. Wilson, one of the most highly respected and best known citizens of Altoona and the retired veteran Pennsylvania Railroad company station master, died at his home, 1417 Eleventh street, at 6:18 o'clock Saturday morning after an illness extending over a period of six months. He had been in failing health for several months and was taken with Bright's disease and grew gradually worse until he passed away. Although it was generally known that he was seriously ill the news of his demise came as a shock to his family and wide circle of friends.

Charles T. Wilson, was born at Cedar Run, Centre county, on September 1, 1832. He was of Scotch Irish descent, his ancestors having been a part of the colony which settled in Northampton county in the early colonial days. His great grandfather was General Philip Benner, of revolutionary fame and later one of the first and most prominent iron masters of Central Pennsylvania. He spent his early life in Centre and Clearfield counties and attended school until he was aged 15 years. On leaving school he learned the trade of a mill-wright which he followed until he was appointed deputy sheriff of Centre county in 1854, in which capacity he served until 1856.

Mr. Wilson's railroad career began in the year 1857 at the expiration of his term as deputy sheriff, and was coincident with the construction of the railroads in central Pennsylvania. His first connection with a railroad was as a rodman in a corps of engineers engaged in the construction of the railroad running between Bellefonte and Snow Shoe. On the completion of the road in 1859 he was made a conductor on the line and earned the respect and esteem of the officers and patrons of the road. He held this position until the outbreak of the civil war when he enlisted in the Fifteenth Pennsylvania cavalry, under General William J. Palmer. The regiment was the body guard of General Rosecrans, during the southern campaign and which resulted in his defeat at Chickamauga. He did not participate in the battle, having been taken prisoner at the battle of Stone River, Tenn. He spent sometime in Rebel prison pens and was subsequently paroled, sent to Camp Chase, O., where he was discharged in August 1863, emaciated and broken in health.

He returned home and again took up railroading as a means of livelihood. He entered the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad company as a fireman on the Tyrone division and later became a brakeman on the same divison. His ability was soon recognized by the officials of the company and he was transferred to Altoona and given the position of station master at the local railroad station on Christmas Day, 1863. Since that time he had been a resident of Altoona and filled the position until he was relieved from active duty on November 1st, 1901 as a mark of honor for his long and faithful service. He was formally retired from the position on October 1st, 1902, since which time he had lived a quite and retired life.

Mr. Wilson was married on December 27th, 1870 at Cedar Springs, Pa., to Miss Martha A. Brown, who survives with five children, Robert C., assistant cashier of the First National bank; and Charles E. of Altoona; Anna A., Roy S. and W. Wallace, at home. He attended the First Presbyterian church and was a member of the Fifteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry association and the Scotch-Irish society of America, of which he was one of the organizers. The funeral took place Monday public services were conducted at the house at 2:30 o'clock by Rev. H. L. Bowlby, pastor of the First Presbyterian church; Private interment Fairview cemetery

DEATH OF CHARLES GRIEST

Died Suddenly at Unionville Tuesday Morning at 7:15

Charles E. Griest member of the grocery firm of P. E. and C. E. Griest of Unionville died very suddenly at the home of his uncle Mr. P. E. Griest at Unionville Tuesday morning at 7:15.

This death is a very sad one indeed, as the young man had just entered upon a prosperous business career and his future seemed as though success would be his, but in this life we are not to plan for future things, only that which God has in store for us.

Mr. Griest was only 24 years old, and had hosts of friends who will be deeply grieved to hear of his sudden death. He had been feeling ill for about two weeks, but only a week ago he was compelled to take his bed. He had been troubled with rheumatism and last Monday he took Typhoid fever and grew gradually worse until his sufferings ended at the time above mentioned.

He was a consistant member of the Presbyterian church of Unionville and was always seen at that place of worship during services. He is survived by his mother Mrs. Anna K. Griest and a sister Miss Lulu of Huntingdon Pa. and a brother Penn of Cymbria Mines, Cambria county Pa. The deceased has made his home with his uncle Mr. P. E. Griest at Unionville for the past ten years.

The funeral will occur this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Death of James Carter

Once again we are called upon to record the death of one more of our oldest and highly respected citizen in the person of brother James Carter who departed this life on Sunday morning March 25, about 9:30 o'clock at his home on East High street. Before going further, it occurs that it may be of interest to some in our community to know just how brother Carter became a resident of our town. Formerly James Carter was a slave, he was born in slavery and remained in servitude until sometime during the Civil War. At this time he was employed by a confederate officer in the confederate army. He remained a servant to this officer until one evening an opportunity afforded him to make his escape to the union line which opportunity he gratefully embraced and made a start for freedom, reaching the Union line, but not without receiving a very severe wound in his side by a ball fired by a confederate soldier. On reaching the Union lines as good fortune would have it, he fell into the hands of our honorable townsman and soldier, Gen. John I. Curtin, who at the close of the war brought him to Pennsylvania and to his, Gen. Curtin's, own home which was then at Curtin's Works, here brother Carter was employed for some time. If the writer has not been misinformed this was in June 1865, since that time he had been almost continuously employed in this estimable family connection. He was well known in the community by all to be civil, industrious, courteous and of very pleasant address, on April 17, 1877, he was married in Bellefonte to Miss Mary Latitia Derry who survives with four children, John D., Wm. C., Rachel Anne and Sarah May all at home.

Brother Carter was converted to God in Jan. 1877, under the pastorate of Rev. W. P. Ross and united with St. Paul A. M. E. church in Bellefonte the same year of his conversion and we believe he had endeavored to live a consistent christian life until the time of his death.

For several years he served as a trustee and steward in the church and in this capacity he was always found loyal and true to his trust, he remained in this official capacity until his affliction became so as to render him unable for official duty about three years since. In the death of brother Carter we lose a good and upright man, one who could not at any time compromise with sin in the least degree, but we feel our loss is his gain and we trust that all that is immortal of brother James Carter rests triumphantly in the Beautiful City of the Redeemed.

MONUMENT FOR BRAVE SOLDIERS

Dedicated in the Vicksburg National Park Saturday.

AN INSPIRING SCENE.

The Oration of the Day Was Delivered by General James A. Beaver of Bellefonte.

MANY OLD SOLDIERS IN ATTENDANCE

Vicksburg, Miss., March 27.—Governor Samuel W. Pennypacker, of Pennsylvania, and Governor James K. Vardaman, of Mississippi, on Saturday afternoon officiated at the dedication of the monument in the Vicksburg National Military park, erected by the state of Pennsylvania in memory of the Keystone state troops that participated in the siege and capture of Vicksburg in 1863.

The scene was an inspiring one, with the surrounding hills and knolls black with thousands of people, about half the population of Vicksburg, who had forsaken business to witness the ceremonies.

The parade was headed by the two governors and their staffs, General Stephen D. Lee, commander in chief of the United Confederate veterans, members of the National Park commission, and the Pennsylvania commissioners, with a regiment of Mississippi troops, under the command of Adjutant General Fridge, acting as an escort. The procession moved through streets profusely decorated with flags and bunting.

General Samuel K. Schwenk, chairman of the Pennsylvania commission, opened the ceremonies at the monument, after a governor's salute had been fired by the Warren Light artillery, of Vicksburg an organization which antedates the Mexican war.

As Miss Lillian Von Schwenk, of Pennsylvania, and Miss Laura Campbell, of Mississippi, pulled the cords that released the draped flags and exposed the beautiful memorial to view, the guns of Battery B. M. N. G., roared a national salute.

Governors Pennypacker and Vardaman spoke briefly, congratulating the country that time had healed the wounds left by the struggle between the sections. The oration of the day was delivered by General James A. Beaver, of Pennsylvania. The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Benjamin Albright, of Durell's battery.

General Stephen D. Lee, commander in chief of the United Confederate Veterans, presided at the camp fire of veterans of both armies here during the evening.

JOHNSON AND SMALL HANGED.

Negroes Pay the Penalty For Murder of Miss Allison.

Mount Holly, N. J., March 26th.—Rufus Johnson and George Small, both negroes, were hanged in the jail yard here for the muder of Miss Florence Allison, on the outskirts of Moorestown, on January 18. Both fully realized their awful doom, but showed no signs of collapsing.

Small's wife bade him good-bye Friday evening, but that ordeal produced no effect on him. No relatives visited Johnson since his arrest, and the only consolation he received was his spiritual advisers. He was the most cheerful of the two.

About 75 persons witnessed the double execution. Their bodies were turned over to Undertaker A. B. Grobler, who will inter them in the Potter's Field at New Lisbon.

Eby—Mayes.

The following item, clipped from an Allentown paper, will be of interest to the readers of this paper, as the bride was one of the popular young ladies of Aaronsburg.

Saved by Girl's Presence of Mind.

Anderson, Ind., March 27.—As Mabel Reeves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Reeves, was about to cross the tracks of the Big Four railroad on her way to school she saw a little girl standing on the tracks, evidently trying to extricate her foot from a frog. Miss Reeves saw a passenger train bearing down upon them. The child began to scream and struggle desperately, but could not free herself. Miss Reeves hurriedly drew a penknife from her pocket and slit the child's shoe and jerked her away from the track just as the engine bore down upon her.

FIRE SWEEPS JOHNSTOWN!

Business Section of the Flood City Threatened With Total Destruction.

THE CITY IN DARKNESS

Much Valuable Property Consumed and Telegraph Operator Missing—William Campbell Fireman, Killed.

THE LOSS MAY REACH A MILLION.

Johnstown, March 28.—With a monetary loss that at 3 a. m. is estimated at nearly a million dollars, one fireman killed several seriously hurt by falling walls, Johnstown is threatened with devastation that almost rivals that of the great flood. The fire broke out at 12.30 o'clock in the centre of the business section, and has been spreading for three hours. The twelve fire companies are powerless to check the blaze, and help may be summoned from Altoona.

The town is without electric lights, the wires having been burned out, and the fight against the fire is further handicapped by constantly bursting hose.

The fire started from an unknown cause in the hardware establishment of Swank & Co., and spread rapidly to the buildings adjoining in on either side.

At 3:15 o'clock the fire was not yet under control.

A fire which has already caused about $200,000 loss, and which is still burning, started at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday morning in the five-story brick building of the Swank Hardware company, at Main and Bedford streets. A general alarm was sent in and all the firemen of the city are trying to get the blaze under control.

ORIGIN OF FIRE IS UNKNOWN.

The Swank Hardware company has the largest wholesale hardware establishment between Pittsburg and Philadelphia. Structures adjoining the Swank Hardware building are also on fire. These include the N. B. Swank carriage and harness store, the undertaking rooms of George Viering, the office of Alderman E. E. Levergood and the printing office of the Ideal Printery. It is not yet known how the blaze started.

EXPLOSION OF POWDER IS FEARED.

A large quantity of powder and oil are stored in the hardware store, and it is not believed that the flames can be checked before they reached it. Grave apprehension is felt as to the result when this powder and oil is ignited. While many streams of water are being played on the hardware building, there is little hope of saving any part of it, and the chief work of the firemen is being directed toward saving surrounding property.

The fire is in the central portion of the business district, and it is feared that many more buildings will be destroyed before the flames are under control.

The entire central part of the city is threatened with destruction by fire. The Swank Hardware company's five story building has been destroyed entailing a loss of $150,000. The building of the Henderson Furniture company is almost destroyed while the Foster building, the D. F. A. Greer building and the Journal building are burned. These building being burned the loss will be in the neighborhood of $700,000.

LOSS MAY RIVAL THE '89 FLOOD.

At 2:35 o'clock it is feared that the property loss may rival that of the memorable flood which devastated Johnstown. The whole business district is in immediate peril of being flame swept. One life has already been lost, that of William Campbell, a fireman, who was caught under a falling wall and crushed to death. His body was recovered by other members of the department. The volunteer fire department is helpless. The equipment is inadequate and the hose is constantly bursting. The town is without electric light or power, the wires of the electric light company have been burned out.

At 3 a. m. the fire continues to spread and is appearantly beyond control of the twelve fire companies fighting the flames. The loss is now estimated close to $1,000,000. Several firemen have been seriously injured. It is feared help will have to be summoned from Altoona.

At 3:40 the chief of the fire department announced the fire was practically under control and that it would burn itself out in the Geis building, the last of four big buildings in a row.

FINDS $6,000 HIDDEN BY HIS WIFE.

Husband Amazed at Wads of Money in the House After She Died.

Mrs. William Shuman died at her home near Elysburg recently. Her husband, being her only surviving relative, decided to offer the household goods for sale and seek a home elsewhere. The sale was scheduled for Wednesday. While taking up carpets and collecting old articles about the premises Tuesday night he was astonished to find a large roll of bills of various denominations. He continued the search and found additional wads of money in out of the way places until he had $6,000.

It was known for some years that Mrs. Shuman had been very close in financial matters, but it was never imagined she had accumulated such an amount as the money found by her amazed husband. He frequently gave her extra cash, but did not concern himself as to it disposition. Lately he became poor. With this find he can re-establish himself.

The deceased was one of the oldest residents of the town and will be greatly missed, not only in the Episcopal church, of which she was a member, but by a large circle of friends and acquaintances. The funeral took place Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the house. Interment in the Union cemetery.

Mitchell—McFarlane.

A nicely appointed but quite unpretentious wedding was that celebrated at the McFarlane home in Boalsburg at noon on Wednesday, when John Mitchell, of Lemont, and Miss Janet McFarlane were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. About forty guests, all close personal friends and relatives of the contracting parties, witnessed the ceremony which was performed by Rev. W. K. Harnish, of the Presbyterian church. There were no attendants. Following the usual wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell left for a brief honeymoon trip to eastern cities and on their return will take up their residence in Lemont.

Soft Berths for the Superannuated

Chicago, March 26.—The Anti-age Limit league believes that it has solved the problem of the men who are unable to obtain employment in Chicago because they have passed the "age limit." If plans now under way are successful, such men are to be sent in great numbers to colonies in Canada and Florida, where they will become the ministers and school teachers or the businessmen of newly created towns.

Mary S. Authony Starts West.

AGREEMENT NOT IN SIGHT

Soft Coal Operators and Miners Divided on Every Proposal.

ARE VERY FAR APART

Various Motions Made by Members of Each Side and All Promptly Voted Down.

SHOT FIRERS' LAW A FEATURE

Indianapolis, March 23rd.—After being in session the greater part of Thursday the joint scale committees of coal operators and miners of the central competitive and of the southwestern districts adjourned until this morning, divided on every point proposed that had been made during the day by either side. The committee apparantly were no nearer an agreement than they were in February last, when the former joint conference disagreed and adjourned.

Chairman J. H. Winder, of the operators, admitted that a disagreement of the joint scale committee of the central competitive district is probable. Vice President Lewis, of the United Mine Workers said:

"There will certainly be a disagreement unless the operators recede from their position."

The joint scale committee of the central competitive district, composed of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania, adjourned this afternoon after being in session eight hours. During the afternoon four proposals were made in the meeting and all were defeated.

President Mitchell moved that the wage scale of 1903 be adopted for one year. In making this motion the mine workers receded from their former demands for a run of mine basis, a differential of seven per cent and eight hour day, an increase of 12½ per cent in wages and prohibit the employment of boys at the mines under 16 years of age. After a brief argument this proposal was defeated, the operators and miners voting by states. All the operators voted against the motion and the miners voted unanimously for it.

H. N. Taylor, of the Illinois operators, then moved that the wage scale of 1903 be accepted for two years, provided the miners agree to pay the expense caused by the shot firers' law in Illinois. The motion was defeated by the unanimous vote of both operators and miners.

President H. C. Perry, of the Illinois miners, moved that the 1903 scale, which is an advance of 5 55 per cent over the present scale in the central district and relatively in the southwest district, be accepted for one year, the operation of the shot firers' law in Illinois to remain as at present. This was defeated, the miners voting for it and the operators against it.

F. L. Robbins, of the Western Pennsylvania operators, moved the adoption of the 1903 scale for two years with the same conditions. This was defeated by the operators of Illinois and Ohio, who voted against the proposal. The Western Pennsylvania operators and the miners voted for it. Under the rules the votes of the operators and miners on all questions pertaining to the wage scale must be recorded as a unit and the motion was lost. At this point the committee adjourned until this morning.

Earlier in the day the miners moved that the Illinois shot firers' law be regarded as a district question, to be settled by the district, but this was defeated by the operators, who took the position that it was an interstate question, as it effected the competitive field. The miners made an effort to have the difference referred to a sub-scale committee of four miners and four operators but the operators would not agree to this. The Western Pennsylvania operators voted with the miners on the question.

Many a poor mother who feels that those she holds most precious are gradually slipping away from her over the terrible precipice of disease, would be thankful to know what Doctor Pierce's wonderful "Golden Medical Discovery" has done to restore thousands of weak and wasted children to complete rounded, rosy, healthy, activity and life.

"Five years ago this last fall I was taken down with a fever and was very bad for several months," writes Mrs. Henrietta Bell, of Diamond, Ohio. She continues: "Finally recovered from the fever, then my lungs became very bad. The doctor said I had consumption, and that he had done all he could for me, and he did not think that I could get well. My case was a very dangerous one. Became very weak, had night-sweats, also a very bad cough, night and day. At times would spit blood. I felt as though my time on earth would be short. Requested my husband to get me a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and perhaps it would help me. Before I had taken one bottle my cough was almost gone. The next to disappear were the night-sweats. I am almost sure that if it had not been for your medicine I would not have been here to-day."

If mothers will only write to Dr. Pierce concerning the ailments of their family he will send them sound and valuable advice in a plain sealed envelope, and without any charge whatever. His remarkably wide experience has qualified him to deal with diseases which baffle the local practitioner. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

GIFTS TO JOCKEYS.

Queer Rewards and Reminders That Come to the Riders.

One of the greatest of living jockeys has a most remarkable collection of tributes from admirers, unknown and otherwise. It contains, among other strange things, pawn tickets, writs and summonses contributed by unsuccessful backers of his mounts, talismans of all kinds to bring him luck in his races, sermons and tracts for his spiritual welfare, recipes for all kinds of ailments, from coughs to a tendency to corpulence, forms for insuring against accidents, offers of marriage, accompanied by bundles of photographs of would be wives, welshers' tickets and a pair of wornout boots with the legend: "All that is left of them after walking from York to London. Backed all your mounts."

A few years ago, after his horse had lost an important race, a well known turfman went up to the jockey and made him a formal and public presentation of a silver snuffbox, saying that if he would look inside he would see the kind of horse he ought to ride in future. The jockey opened the box and found in it half a dozen rat snouts. It was the same satirical owner who on another occasion presented his jockey with a sumptuous casket, which on being opened disclosed a wooden spoon, and to a third jockey who had failed to win an important race he handed a pair of crutches bought from a beggar on the course.

When John Singleton, a clever jockey of nearly two centuries ago, first won a race in Yorkshire the farmer whose horse he had ridden to victory was so delighted with his achievement that he made him a present of a ewe, whose offspring soon mustered a round dozen, and really started the ex-shepherd lad on his career as a jockey. Singleton was very proud of and grateful for his singular fee.

In this respect he furnished a great contrast to a well known jockey who when a check for $1,500 was handed to him by the owner of a horse on which he had won a race crumpled it up contemptuously, with the remark that he had "often received more for riding a two-year-old."—Chicago News.

They Didn't Play.

A monster political parade was held in Philadelphia during one of the campaigns. It was headed by a band of thirty-five discoursing stirring marching tunes. The leader of the band had contracted in advance to supply that many players, but when he came to count noses he found eight missing. It did not take him long to decide what to do. After some hustling he secured eight men, not one of whom could play a note of music, and decked them out in the regulation band uniform. He placed instruments and music in their hands and paraded the full number. "Did they play?" was asked. "Yes," said the band leader, "but not music. I put a cork in each of the eight instruments."

THE DEVIL'S CODE.

Legend of a Monk, Satan and a Quick Night's Work.

Stockholm's public library contains a wonderful work which is called "The Devil's Code" and which, in addition to its extraordinary name, is said to be the biggest manuscript in the world. Every letter is most beautifully drawn, and the magnitude of the work is so great that it seems impossible for any single monk to have done it.

The story of the origin of the manuscript, however, not only gives it as the work of one man, but also states it to be the work of a single night. The story runs as follows:

"A poor monk had been condemned to death, but was told mockingly by his judges that if he was able to copy the whole 'Code' between darkness and dawn he would be saved. Relying upon the impossibility of the task, those who sentenced him furnished him with the original copy of the 'Code,' with pen, ink and parchment, and left him.

"Death must have been as little liked in the middle ages as it is now, for the monk, forgetting the hopelessness of his task, commenced it. Before long, however, he saw that he could not save his own life by such weak exertions, and, fearing a cruel and horrible death, he invoked the aid of the prince of darkness, promising to surrender his soul if he were assisted in the task.

"The devil kindly obliged by appearing on the spot, accepted the contract and sat down to the work, and next morning 'The Devil's Code' was finished, the monk being found dead. The copying clerk from the infernal regions presumably fled away with the poor man's soul as soon as the wicked compact was finished." — Pearson's Weekly.

Embarrassing.

A New York judge, speaking of a mistake that had been made, said: "It might have been embarrassing—as embarrassing as the position of a young man of Toledo whom I heard about the other day. He had been calling now and then on a young lady, and one night as he sat in the parlor waiting for her to come down her mother entered the room instead and asked him in a very grave, stern way what his intentions were. He turned very red and was about to stammer some incoherent reply when suddenly the young lady called down from the head of the stairs, 'Mamma, mamma, that is not the one!'"

Remembered the Text.

A little Topeka girl came home from church the other day and was asked what the minister's text was. "I know it all right," she asserted. "Well, repeat it," her questioner demanded. "Don't be afraid and I will get you a bedquilt," was the astonishing answer. Investigation proved that the central thought of the sermon had been, "Fear not, and I will send you a comforter."—Kansas City Journal.

Long Minutes.

"Are you ready, dear?"

"In one minute, darling."

"Matrimony does not dispel all our illusions," he muttered as he lit a cigar. "Before we were married I thought every moment I had to wait for her was an eternity, and so it's turned out to be."—Baltimore American.

For Thin Babies

Fat is of great account to a baby; that is why babies are fat. If your baby is scrawny, Scott's Emulsion is what he wants. The healthy baby stores as fat what it does not need immediately for bone and muscle. Fat babies are happy; they do not cry; they are rich; their fat is laid up for time of need. They are happy because they are comfortable. The fat surrounds their little nerves and cushions them. When they are scrawny those nerves are hurt at every ungentle touch. They delight in Scott's Emulsion. It is as sweet as wholesome to them.

Red Hair Barred from Jury Box.

Derby, Conn., March 24.—Six red haired talesman who had been excepted by the state in the selection of a jury to try Sabine Perielle, charged with the murder of a fellow Italian, was excused by Jacob R. Goodhart, attorney for the accused, in the Waterbury superior court. Mr. Goodhart held that his client, because of his swarthy hue, would not be so likely to receive impartial judgment from men of sandy complexion as from those of darker features.

Dog Elected to Russian Assembly.

St. Petersburg, March 24th.—The workmen in one of the mills in this city to render the elections ridiculous formally chose as their delegate a pet dog called Rosa, declaring that the selection was made in a spirit of economy and at the same time the dog would be quite as useful as a representative of the workmen's interests as any of their candidates who have a chance of election.

Wilkes-Barre Centennial.

Wilkes Barre, Pa., March 22.—So many organizations have already accepted invitations to participate in the gigantic parades scheduled here during Wilkes-Barre's centennial jubilee and old home week, May 10-12, that every public building in the city will be fitted up as quarters for the visitors.

Five regiments of the National Guard will form one division of the parade on Military Day, May 11, and there will be mammoth divisions of firemen, veterans and secret societies.

The city will be a glare of electric lights by night, the sum of $10,000 having been set aside to construct a glittering canopy of incandescents above the public square which will be transformed into a court of honor.

Prizes aggregating $2,000 have been appropriated to the winners of a dual professional and amateur athletic meet, and $4,000 more will be divided among the makers and float owners during the fantastic Mardi Grass Carnival which will conclude the celebration on Saturday evening.

A Japanese water carnival, choral competitions, civic and industrial processions and a host of other attractions will fill in every hour of each day and evening during the jubilee.

Queer Spring Weather, This.

The gardeners who a few weeks ago thought spring had arrived, when they saw the robins and bluebirds hopping about, and dug up their hot beds and put in the seed for early planting, feel like kicking themselves now. Last night the weather man capped the climax, and people are wondering "where we are at." It would appear that the seasons have been turned topsy-turvy, and if this thing keeps up, future generations will be fanning themselves in January, and hugging their stoves in July. At 7 o'clock this morning the mercury in some of the thermometer tubes registered zero. That's pretty stiff for spring, isn't it? However, let us be cheerful and keep on shoveling coal, for better days are coming.

There are some women who seem to be perennially youthful. The grown daughters are companions as well as children, and the color in the mother's cheeks, the brightness in her eyes, the roundness of her form, all speak of abounding health. What is her secret? She is at the middle age of life when so many women are worn, wasted and faded, and yet time has only ripened her charms. The secret of this matronly health and beauty may be told in the brief phrase, Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The general health of woman is so intimately related to the local health of the delicate womanly organs, that where these are disease, the whole body must suffer. "Favorite Prescription" dries the debillitating drains, heals ulceration and inflammtion, cures female weakness and imparts to the delicate female organs natural vigor and vitality. Woman who have lost their health and their beauty have been made robust and rosy cheeked" by the use of this marvelous medicine.

MISS DEBORAH PASSMORE.

An Able Artist In the Employ of the Government.

In the division of pomology of the department of agriculture are reproduced in water color studies the choice varieties of fruits that are sent in from all over the country.

Chief of the little corps of artists doing this work for the government is Miss Deborah Passmore, who is widely known for the accuracy and the beauty of her work. Her water color "portraits" of rare apricots, peaches, plums, grapes and various other fruits are not only technically perfect and therefore of value to the scientific world, but they are really works of art. It is remarkable how she succeeds in catching the very texture of the skin as well as the color and form of the fruit. The hard, smooth surface of a winter apple, the fuzzy cheek of a peach, the pebbled grain of a pear—all are so realistically shown that the fruit stands out from the sheet as if one could pick it up. Yet Miss Passmore is a rapid worker, and the files of the division contain portfolios filled with the output of her brushes. Throughout the department and in the fields where her work has long been recognized as probably the finest that has ever been achieved it excites the greatest admiration and enthusiasm.

Miss Passmore was an artist of unusual ability before she entered the government work and has a large collection of pictures, both in oils and water colors, on the walls of her attractive home. She came to Washington some twenty years ago and established herself as a teacher, having classes composed largely of young women in diplomatic circles. She has been in the department for twelve years, during which time she has acquired the remarkable skill for which she is so well known.—Washington Post.

Why Ashamed of Work?

"A woman who will work and has no false pride about declaring herself a business woman is usually successful," said a prominent man recently, "but I never knew one that committed the folly of apologizing for earning her bread or endeavored to hide the fact that she was in business that did not make a failure."

What would be said of a man who thought so meanly of his occupation or of himself for being engaged in it that he continually offered excuses for not passing his life in idleness? asks the Chicago Inter Ocean.

This feeling of reserve is one of the chief obstacles to be overcome by the average woman forced to a consideration of the question of earning a livelihood, and the sooner we realize the fact that all work that supplies a legitimate want is honorable the nearer will be the solution of the financial problem so often a menace to the happiness of the individual and the home.

The great law of supply and demand is the chief factor of success in the world of business. That a woman should offer to help fill a demand and receive a just remuneration therefor is not a thing to be ashamed of.

Children's Second Teeth.

No sooner has a child got its first teeth than it is time to begin to think about the second. The first permanent teeth come when the child is from five to seven, and as they are the four molars which come beyond the last molars of the temporary set they are often mistaken for the first teeth. As soon as they appear the child should be taken to the dentist to see if they are regular in their position.

If the teeth do not come in perfectly even and regular a dentist can remedy defects which it is impossible to change after they have been neglected a few years. The dentist should also be seen even before a first tooth is taken out, as if it is removed too soon the jaw contracts and the tooth which comes in its place is crowded.

Care given to the first set is as important as care to the second, and a soft brush should be used twice a day from the time the child is a baby. Tooth powder is not necessary to keep children's teeth in good order. Rinsing the mouth at night with a little limewater and cleaning often enough with soft water are a better preservative than a dentifrice.

Opposing Labor Savers.

If woman did not oppose the introduction of electricity in the kitchen her work would be easier, is the startling statement made by the writer of "The Electric Housekeeper" in the Tech-

Joy's recollection is no longer joy while sorrow's memory is sorrow still.—Byron.

SKEES ON MOTORS.

Device to Aid Aeronauts In Dash For North Pole.

It may be that the automobile and the airship will form a combination that will successfully accomplish the discovery of the north pole, says the New York American.

The airship feature of the Automobile Club of America show in New York has brought this proposition into prominence, and the other day at the new Sixty-ninth regiment armory, where the stray odds and ends that littered up the opening were being cleared away, it was learned that only the day before an arrangement had been made with a well known manufacturer for the immediate construction of several motor skees that will be used in the forthcoming attempt of Santos-Dumont and Walter Wellman to conquer the frozen fields of the arctic.

These motor skees will be substituted for the Eskimo dogs usually employed for hauling the sledges containing supplies, and in the matter of speed the expedition should reach Spitzenbergen much earlier than would be the case with canine power. It is at Spitzenbergen that the daring aeronauts will take to the air, while the motor skee division of the expedition will continue as far as practicable and then await the return of the aerial navigators.

The motor skees are to be single wheel, rear driven, the wheel to have a broad face of some eighteen inches width to offer resistance on the soft snow, and the face of the wheel is to be studded with steel points to have tractive qualities on the ice. The front wheels will be replaced by the Norwegian skee.

The problem presented is a most difficult one owing to the extreme cold. Alcohol freezes at 42 degrees below zero, and the engineers and chemists are consequently called upon to find a fuel which will be suited to the climate of the far north. Inasmuch as the airship will itself be provided with a motor for navigation, the automobile engineers and those of the airship will co-operate in the quest for this new fuel. Of course the motor skees will be of the air cooled type. A Connecticut firm has the contract.

UP TO DATE MISSOURI FARM

One Near Mexico Has Electric Lights on It.

R. R. Howard, a young farmer who lives about sixteen miles northeast of Mexico, Mo., has an electric light plant complete in every detail on his farm, says a Mexico correspondent of the Kansas City Star. He not only illuminates his residence, but lights his barns and outbuildings. The plant was put up by Mr. Howard himself. It has a capacity of twenty-five incandescent lights of sixteen candlepower strength.

Besides being a practical and successful farmer Mr. Howard is an electrical genius of no mean ability. He has patented several inventions which have proved to be practical. His latest invention is an electric mail box signal. Many homes on the rural routes are some distance from the road, and their mail boxes are placed on the public highway, in many cases a quarter of a mile from the house. This electric alarm is so arranged that a bell in the house will ring whenever the box is opened.

Keeping Your Figure.

Always carry the chest further in front of you than any other part of you, certainly than the part below the waist, but draw this latter part up and up many times a day, especially if you are inclined to get fat there, and nothing destroys a figure more than this, which has been described as "the middle aged spread."

Library Books.

Did you ever think of the danger that may come through the innocent habit of reading library books? They are universal property, and the hand that has turned the leaves just before you may be a vehicle for contamination of any kind. Inhale a disinfectant and expose the books to one before use.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Home of Swamp-Root.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

COMPARATIVE PEDAGOGY.

Sensational Result of an Educational Inquiry In Springfield, Mass.

A most remarkable piece of educational investigation has recently been accomplished at Springfield, Mass., which goes far toward deciding the question as to whether or not the schools of our fathers and grandfathers, with their narrow curricula, produced better spellers and better cipherers than the present day schools, with their more elaborate programmes, says Ossian H. Lang in January-March Forum. It came about in this way: Some eight years ago, in cleaning out the garret of the old high school in Springfield, there was found in a rubbish heap a bound volume containing spelling tests and examination questions, with answers, of the year 1846. Dr. Balliet, to whose work as superintendent is due the exceptionally good name of the city's schools, placed the volume in his safe and on leaving Springfield brought it to the attention of Mr. Riley, a very efficient and keen sighted grammar school principal. Mr. Riley at once recognized the peculiar value of the find and made it the basis of a series of educational tests which established beyond reasonable doubt the superiority of the work of the modern elementary schools over those of sixty years ago. The results of his tests were published in the Springfield Republican and reprinted in the School Journal.

Since the appearance of the Forum articles on needed lines of educational research this is probably the most important contribution to tangible pedagogy. For the want of testimony such as this there has been no end of lamentation over the decline of the efficiency of the schools in the so called "practical" branches. We have been told in season and out of season that spelling and arithmetic were never more poorly taught than at present and that the only salvation was to be found in a return to the three R fleshpots of old. Now comes the awful disillusionment of the pleaders for the ways of the fathers. There is no getting away from the cold logic of the tests supplied by Mr. Riley. He shows that the pupils attending the present day grammar schools of Springfield not only do much better in arithmetic, but spell better than their forbears in 1846.

The results of this investigation confirm emphatically the contention of Dr. J. M. Rice to the effect that increase of the time devoted to the three R's does not produce correspond ng increase of efficiency. His researches established that spelling and arithmetic may be as successfully taught where a rich curriculum is in force as where the programme confines itself to the narrowest possible limit. In spite of the comprehensiveness of his proofs some people sought shelter behind assertions going back of present conditions to the past, claiming that whatever may be said of the schools of today those of the past grounded the children more thoroughly in the so called "essentials." This prop of comfort must feel rather shaky after the Springfield examination.

SUNDAY EGGS FOR MISSIONS

Plan Tried In Danville, Ky., Helps Four Missionaries to Work.

Poetasters and paragraphers have poked fun at the Kentucky woman who last autumn announced that all eggs laid on Sunday would be devoted to foreign missions, says a Danville (Ky.) dispatch to the New York World. The wisdom of the policy has been vindicated and the religious fervor of the hen established by the announcement recently made after services at Bethel church, Mercer county, that enough Sunday eggs had been sold to warrant the sending of four missionaries to Japan next spring and that before the end of the year the society would be able to give three or four "egg paid" missionaries to benighted China.

The announcement was made by Mrs. Nannie C. Helm, wife of the pastor of Bethel Cumberland Presbyterian church, and was well received not only because it Christianizes in a way the hen, but because it opens up a new field for the charitably inclined.

It was in December last that the Woman's Missionary society after a heated debate agreed that all eggs laid on Sunday should be converted into one common fund to be devoted in some way then determined to foreign missions. Other denominations have taken up the idea, and before another year has passed it seems not improbable that Mercer county hens and roosters will be supporting a legion of missionaries in Japan and China.

Pure Olive Oil.

If olive oil congeals in freezing weather, it is a sign that it is adulterated with lard. Very few bottles of so called olive oil will stand this simple test—in fact, we seldom get the pure thing, and, if we did, the chances are that we could not eat it. At least, that was the experience once upon a time of one woman who used a great deal of mayonnaise dressing upon her table and had supposed that she doted on olive oil. An Italian friend bestowed upon her a flask of the peculiarly green fluid. To her surprise, not one of her family, herself included, could bear its taste. There was a tang to it which showed them that they had never eaten olive oil before and that they never wanted to eat it again. So they gave the flask away.—New York Telegram.

Pincushions.

If you were to take apart an old pincushion you would find an astonishing number of needles in it. To prevent this, when you stick a needle into the cushion, stick it in slantwise, not straight down, for if put in pin fashion it is sure to work its way into the cushion and get lost.

SUBDUED LIGHTS.

Fry Colored Shades For Toning Down the Trying White Glare.

Women who pride themselves on having artistic homes are selecting neutral and subdued shades for shielding the glare of the trying white light in an effort to get becoming and restful tones.

Few women will be subjected to an awful greenish glare, a purple hue or even pale blue rays at any time, for careful housekeepers realize the advantage of having a soft shade of light to give a desirable tone to the surroundings as well as to make the most of their personal appearance, and for this reason delicate shades of yellow, pink and rose will be found ingeniously twisted around almost all the electric light bulbs in an apartment, particularly in the dining room, where a glaring or trying light frequently causes untold discomfort to the nerves of guests, besides making them look unreal and often ghastly.

The strong light will be toned down by a ground glass or silk shield that has recently been invented. Those made of glass are screwed to the fixtures beneath the light and usually fit inside the globe. They really add to the appearance, because, being of glazed glass, the inside view of the framework is shut out.

Those made of sheer silk are round, or of whatever shape will fit the bottom of the globe. They should be fitted to a fine wire frame that can easily be fastened to the fixture. The silk, of course, is put on smooth, so that, while the light is softened, it is not dim.

In a dining room the artistic scheme is to have all the light concentrated on the table, leaving the rest of the apartment in subdued shadows. This is readily accomplished by placing the lights directly above or right on the table. Candelabra dropped from the ceiling are most frequently used above dining tables and are sufficiently high not to interfere with the placing of floral decorations in the center. The glare from these lights is softened before it falls on the white linen, sparkling cut glass and shining silverware by placing a shield of glass or thin silk beneath the bulbs and around the edges of the globe. It should be of light yellow, pale pink or red if the desire is to get a becoming light.

The Onion.

"Onions are really sweeteners of the breath after the local effects have passed away," says one learned doctor. This statement is not in accordance with our own experience; therefore we avoid onions. We are still further informed by the same authority that onions correct stomach disorders and carry off the accumulated poisons of the system. They provide a blood purifier that all may freely use. Eaten raw an onion will often check a cold in the head. One small onion eaten every night before retiring is this well known doctor's prescription for numerous affections of the head and is highly recommended for sleeplessness. Personally, we are never troubled with any of these complaints and therefore still look upon this strange vegetable as something to avoid.—Vegetarian.

When You Sneeze.

The alarm signal of a draft is a sneeze, which is a spasmodic effort of nature to start up the circulation and relieve the congestion. A person may be far gone toward contracting a cold before he sneezes, but the moment he gets this warning he should change his position, look around for the draft and move out of it or protect himself against it. A draft is something to be sneezed at—and to be avoided. Drafts cause more deaths than war, whisky, football, consumption and yellow fever put together. Almost everybody who dies from disease dates his sickness from taking cold. This is especially true of elderly people. Yet it is a matter in regard to which there are great ignorance and inattention.

Unfamiliar With the Beast.

"Yes," remarked the professor, "I rather pride myself on the discovery of another hypothesis."

"Indeed," replied Mrs. Cumrox, a little doubtfully. "I had an idea they were quite extinct."—Washington Star.

Very Different Trials.

Flies and Music.

"Piano playing will drive flies from your apartments," declared a man who expounds odd theories. "That sounds like a joke, and, of course, there are some kinds of playing that will chase human beings from a room, but seriously I mean that music is objectionable to insects—in fact, all sounds annoy them.

"Whoever saw flies in a boiler shop? No one that I know of, because the vibrations caused by the continuous pounding are as deranging to the insects as are the atmospheric disturbances resulting from electric fans. Every one should be familiar with the intensity of the vibrations produced by the strings of a piano. For instance, many persons, no doubt, have noticed that a loose glass in a picture frame will buzz when a certain note is struck. Well, when the strength of the sound wave which causes the ill fitting glass to hum, though it may be a dozen feet away, is multiplied a score of times in a second, as is the case when a spirited piano performance is in progress, the effect of the vibrations on the extremely sensitive insects may be imagined. They simply can't stand a prolonged sound."—Philadelphia Record.

When Does One Become Old?

Dr. Osler is credited with the ridiculous suggestion that a man should be chloroformed at sixty. Himself approaching sixty he keeps at his work without a regard for his own opinions. But there are few physicians who are willing to take their own medicine. The truth is, the almanac has but little to do with a man's real age. Some men are in their prime at seventy; others are old at forty. Do you find these mental tendencies pronounced, and are they growing? Loss of memory, loss of constructive imagination, resistance to any change, inability to adjust one's self to anything new, magnifying of trifles, incapacity for original work, willingness to let things slip, etc. If they are, old age is approaching. If you lack the power of initiative, if you are ruffled when anyone wants you to do a thing differently from the way you have been accustomed to do it, you are reaching the stage when your usefulness will diminish, and when you will be old. Do you see how to keep young?

There are now but two charcoal furnaces in the county, the Curtin furnace and the McCoy—Linn, and as there is generally a good market for charcoal iron they are kept in blast.

—For some time past the Bellefonte furnace was not doing as good as it could on account of the accumulation of slag in the stack, which in furnace parlance is called a "scaffold." The furnace was blown out last Thursday, allowed to cool and a gang of men put to work cutting out slag. The "scaffold" was removed, the stack filled and relighted and everything running as usual by Monday morning, an exceptionally quick job which showed the good management of those in charge.

SIMON CLARK'S DEATH.

A Former Centre County Man Killed in a Desperate Encounter With Two Huge Bears.

Simon Clark, of Hollidaysburg, and who resided in Philipsburg thirty years ago, lying dead beside the carcasses of two huge bears, which he had killed in a battle to the death, was found Wednesday by a searching party in the Big Horn mountains in Wyoming. Four broken ribs, a mangled arm and an ugly wound at the base of the brain told of the desperate fight which had preceded the death of the hunter. Clark left his home some time ago for an extended hunting trip. Clark was a noted cavalryman, and was also quite famous as an Indian fighter, having been with Custer at the latter's massacre. He visited in Centre county about twelve years ago, and was cordially greeted by many of his old cronies.

The Lecture by Mrs. Josephine Peck.

On last Friday evening a fair sized audience listened to a lecture on "Art" given by Mrs. Josephine Peck of Lock Haven in Petrikin hall. Many beautiful stereopticon views of the paintings of Raphael were shown and the lecture throughout proved intensely interesting and instructive.

The proceeds were for the benefit of the Bellefonte hospital—a very worthy cause and Col. J. L. Spangler, under whose direction the lecturer came here, was enabled to turn over to the Ladies' Auxillary of the hospital twenty-two dollars and twenty cents being the proceeds of the Art lecture after all expenses were deducted.

Mrs. Peck showed her generosity by contributing ten dollars to the fund from the amount she received for delivering the lecture. The Ladies Auxillary feel very grateful to Mrs. Peck for her kindness in coming here and lending her assistance in swelling the hospital fund. All Mrs. Peck accepted was barely enough to defray the necessary expenses.

Day and Night Banks.

The all day and all night bank seems to be growing in favor. There is an institution of this kind in New York, its capital stock has been increased from $250,000 to $110,000,000, showing a high degree of prosperity. Such banks are to be found in many European cities and are said to be very successful. A charter for a bank to be kept open for business day and night has recently been granted in Chicago.

The only holidays provided for are Sundays, Christmas and New Year's Day. The numerous other legal holidays usually kept by banks will be devoted to business by Chicago institution. In order to keep open twenty four hours a day three shifts of employes will be required. The bank will be convenient for business men who wish to make deposits and cash checks after 3 o'clock, the conventional hour for closing banks in this country.

TWO BEAUTIFUL WOMEN WHO ESCAPED SPRING CATARRH BY TAKING PE-RU-NA.

Spring Fever is Spring Catarrh—Nothing Robs One of Strength Like Spring Catarrh.

MISS ESTELLE CAMPBELL.

Miss Estelle Campbell, 140 N. High street, Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"Peruna helped me when almost everything else failed. I was rundown from overwork, as I had not been able to take a vacation for three years and naturally my nerves were all unstrung and I was greatly in need of rest and a tonic.

"I went away for two months, but did not seem to get my strength back, although I was taking a prescription which the doctor gave me before I went away.

"At the request of my relatives, with whom I was visiting, I began to use Peruna, and you cannot realize how glad I was when within a week I found I was feeling so much better. Inside of a month I was feeling splendidly, ready and able to take up my work again."—Estelle Campbell.

A Spring Tonic.

Almost everybody needs a tonic in the spring. Something to brace the nerves, invigorate the brain, and cleanse the blood. That Peruna will do this is beyond all question.

We have on file thousands of letters which testify to the curative and preventive value of Peruna in cases of nervous depression and run down conditions of the system. We quote a typical case:

Mr. Frank Williams, 3935 34th street, New York City, member First Presbyterian Church and Captain Capitol Golf Club, writes:

"Last spring I suffered with malaria and a run down condition which seemed very difficult to overcome.

"I tried several different tonics but did not seem to get much better until I began using Peruna. My recovery was slow, but I was improving and I was glad to continue using it.

"At the end of two months my health was restored and I looked and felt much better than I had for years. Your remedy is well worthy of a recommend and I am pleased to give it mine."—Frank Williams.

Peruna never fails to prevent spring catarrh or nervous prostration, if taken in time.

Pe-ru-na is the Finest Tonic For a Weary Woman.

Miss B. Inez Silvera, 189 W. 136th street, New York City, Grand Recorder Daughters of American Independence, writes:

"Nine years of work, without a vacation, wore out my nervous system. I lost my appetite and felt weak and exhausted nearly all the time.

"Peruna restored me to perfect health in five weeks. It is the finest tonic for a weary woman that I know of. I gladly endorse it."—B. Inez Silvera.

Peruna is the most prompt and permanent cure for all cases of nervous prostration caused by systemic catarrh known to the medical profession.

MISS B. INEZ SILVERA.

Pe-ru-na Contains No Narcotics.

One reason why Peruna has found permanent use in so many homes is that it contains no narcotic of any kind. Peruna is perfectly harmless. It can be used any length of time without acquiring a drug habit. Peruna does not produce temporary results. It is permanent in its effect.

It has no bad effect upon the system, and gradually eliminates catarrh by removing the cause of catarrh. There are a multitude of homes where Peruna has been used off and on for twenty years. Such a thing could not be possible if Peruna contained any drugs of a narcotic nature. All correspondence held strictly confidential.

AN INTERESTING STATEMENT.

C. M. Parrish Says He Has at Last Discovered a Positive Cure for Indigestion.

"For years," said the above druggist "we have been waiting for some one to discover a remedy that really will cure dyspepsia.

"I recently learned that a new remedy, Pepsikola Tablets, had been placed on the market, and on investigation I found that at last there is a remedy that surely will come.

"I laid in a big supply because I knew that as soon as the people began to know about this remarkable remedy there would be a big demand for it, and it is selling beyond my expectations."

It is not often a druggist sells a new remedy on a positive guarantee, but unless cured of nervousness, dizzy spells, sour stomach, coated tongue, palpitation and other symptoms of dyspepsia, Mr. Parrish will hand back your money cheerfully and without argument.

No one should hesitate on trying a 25-cent box of Pepsikola Tablets, as they will not cost you a penny should they fail to relieve and cure the very worst case of indigestion and dyspepsia

One Hundred and Ten.

This was the number, 45 males and 65 females, present at the Coleville Bible school Sunday afternoon.

All had a part in the review exercises, it being the last Sabbath of the closing quarter.

After a Scripture responsive reading Bible Words about Wisdom the Sabbath Day Poem by Sir Matthew Hale, the Beatitudes, the 23rd Psalm were recited from memory by the entire school except the very youngest who repeated two of the Good Shepherd texts The exercises interspersed with appropriate praise. Thus the good seed sowing in our suburban Bible school going on in wintry weather. "What shall the harvest be?" Our aim is to win them all, through Christ, into "the kingdom of God."

Taken to Bellefonte.

Daniel Knauff, a former Williamsport man, was arrested by Constable Tepel and brought to Williamsport from Towanda Thursday night. He is charged with defrauding a boarding house keeper. He was arrested previously and entered bail for court, but skipped to another country. He was returned by his captor Friday afternoon to Bellefonte after spending the night in jail.

Money is Not Success.

At a recent funeral in New York city of a multi-millionaire the body was followed to the grave by only six carriage including the detectives and all the mourners, beneficiares of the will, with hardly a tear of genuine sorrow shed—not even by the family.

Who would call such a life a success. Who would quote that career as an example to young men? A long life with no generosity while living, a life of no love of God, no love to man while living, a life with no goodness—twenty millions for heirs to fight about; twenty millions rich, yet not one moment after the man has gone, how poor inwardly.

The man who has nothing but money, or, rather, the man whom money has, is the poorest thing in all the world.

Who would stand for all their money in the shoes of the insurance men who have robbed widows and orphans? These men have gathered together that which makes fools envy them, but who does them honor? Would they not gladly begin life over again and live for a good name rather than great riches? Money-making is not success. Character is success, and there is no other.

Coming Attraction.

The event of season will be the coming production of the laughable comedy "College Chums" at Petrikin Hall on Thursday April 5, under the auspices of the U. C. T. U. The production will be presented by a clever cast of Bellefonte local talent under the direction of Messrs Vance and Bingham of New York who are well known as producers and directors of amateur entertainments. The program will consist of a merry Melange of music, mirth and comedy entirely different from anything ever given here by amateurs or professionals. Rehearsals are being held each afternoon and evening and the committee in charge will leave nothing undone to make this one of the most pleasing and interesting production ever given here.

Commencement Exercises.

The Ferguson township High Schoo will hold its annual commencement at Pine Grove Mills on Wednesday evening. April 4 The exercises will be held in Odd Fellows Hall. The graduating class numbers four and is composed of Miss Helen Lytle of Penna. Furnace, Miss Beulah Smith and Miss Lucetta Tanyer, both of Pine Grove Mills, and Harry Rossman of State College. This class will be the first to complete the adoped High Schoo course. All are cordially invited to attend.

Books.

Fine books thrive best in rooms without fire. Intense heat will cause the bindings to become loose and peel off. Pieces of camphor in the cases may prove a preventive against moths, though the danger from any sort of insect in temperate climates is very remote. There are insects in some of the tropical countries which will eat certain colored bindings, so that books for these countries must be bound in colors these insects do not like Brown spots come quickly in the poor papers than in the good, hence reference books for a library, books that should last a lifetime, should be of good paper.

Ex-County Treasurer in Prison.

Binghamton, N. Y., March 26.—Charles S. Woodruff, ex-treasurer of Delaware county, and a prominent politician, began a term of three years in Auburn state prison for forgery. When his accounts were investigated some time ago, forgeries of drafts, etc., amounting to $30,000 were unearthed.

Noted Woman Doctor Dead.

Denver, March 26th.—Dr. Jessie M. McGregor, a noted Scotch physician, died at her home in this city after a five days illness of cerebral spinal meningitis. Dr. McGregor ranked among the best of women physicians and won distinction at Edinburgh, Leibsic and Paris, where she pursued her studies. She was the possessor of the highest degree ever attained by a woman physician.

Three Young Desperadoes.

Cleveland, March 27.—Three negro boys, giving their names as Harry Freeman, Joseph Morris and John Henderson, were arrested by the police here on the charge of committing three derglaries a few hours previous to their arrest and with stabbing a man so badly that he is dying at a hospital. The boys, according to the story told by the police, broke into two hardware stores and a meat market, and while coming out of the latter they saw Benjamin Levensberg, an old man, who was on his way home from work, pass. One of the boys, without a word, plunged a stilletto into the man's abdomen, inflicting a terrible wound, which the physicians say will prove fatal. The police say that after being arrest-but the boys confessed that they had started out on their raid pledged to kill anybody that interfered with their work. The boys were caught by the police in the act of robbing the second hardware store. They opened fire on the officers when discovered, but their shots went wild The police say cheap literature is responsible for their crimes.

What a Barrel of Whisky Contains.

A barrel of headaches, of heartaches, of woes;
A barrel of curses, a barrel of blows;
A barrel of tears from a world-weary wife;
A barrel of sorrow, a barrel of strife;
A barrel of all unavailing regret;
A barrel of cares and a barrel of debt
A barrel of crime and a barrel of pain;
A barrel of hope ever blasted and vain.
A barrel of falsehood, a barrel of cries
That fall from the maniac's lips as he dies;
A barrel of agony, heavy and dull;
A barrel of poison—of this nearly full;
A barrel of liquid damnation that fires
The brain of the fool who believes it inspires;
A barrel of poverty, ruin and blight;
A barrel of terrors that grow with the night.
A barrel of hunger, a barrel of groans;
A barrel of orphans' most pitiful moans;
A barrel of serpents that hiss as they pass
From the head of the liquor that glows in the glass. —What to Eat.

Seven Killed by Train

Sunbury, Pa., March 27.—An express train on the Philadelphia & Reading railway crushed into a wagon containing Washington Neidig, aged 63 years; his sons, Clarence, aged 41, and Cyrus, aged 36; Mrs. Cyrus Neidig, aged 30, and her three young children, and all were killed instantly with the exception of one of the children, who died at a hospital. The accident occurred at Hass Crossing, a short distance from this place. All the victims were residents of Ralpho township, of which Washington Neidig was supervisor. The victims were in a large covered wagon, making it very difficult for them to see the track. When the train struck the wagon the vehicle was in the center of the track, and the express was running at such a high rate of speed that the wagon was carried fully 200 yards. Several of the victims were rolled along under the engine for more than a hundred yards and were horribly mangled.

Home Talent

Messrs Vance and Bingham who are conducting rehearsals for the production of the laughable comedy "College Chums" which will be given at Petrikin Hall on Thursday April 5, have secured some exceptionally clever local talent and assures us that the entertainment will be one of the best seen here in a long time. Arrangements have been made for an elaborate stage setting for this occasion, and the committee in charge will leave nothing undone to make the production a grand success. They have just lately played in Lewistown, Pa. and the Daily Sentinal says—"The College Chums" was one of the best features and was presented in a manner that made it even more enjoyable than the work of professional traveling companies.

Drunken Man Upsets Lamp and is Horribly Burned

Standing erect in a clothespress at his home in Huntingdon, unable to help himself, John Port burned to death Saturday morning at 4 o'clock, as the result of an oil lamp explosion.

Port was alone in the house, his wife being in Lewistown, visiting a relative. It is alleged he had been drinking and accidentally overturned a lamp, causing an explosion. In his efforts to extinguish the flames his clothing caught fire. Alarmed he crawled into the clothes press where his lifeless body was found by the firemen. He was aged about 50 years and was an employee of the Huntingdon planing mill.

She Makes Merry at 108.

Mrs. Mary McKittrick, of Uniontown, the oldest person in Western Pennsylvania, Saturday celebrated her 108th birthday, and made merry with many friends.

The Pure Food Roll of Honor.

"Good Housekeeping," a well known household national magazine voluntarily made a thorough examination and test of None-Such Mince Meat, and placed it without reservation upon its roll of honor.

In the March number of Good Housekeeping, in the department of "Pure Food Assurance," we find

"None-Such Mince Meat, Merrill-Soule Co. Syracuse, a semi-moist condensed compound of beef, apples, spices, sugar, raisins, currants, boiled cider and salt, without other preservatives or adulterants, no artificial coloring, produced under conditions as near to sanitary perfections as possible."

This guarantee, which could not be bought at any price, ought to satisfy the most particular house-wife. The sale of one million packages a month seems to prove the statement to be true. Your grocer sells None-Such. Try it, and satisfy yourself. You are the one.

QUEER FREAKS OF NATURE THAT ABOUND IN NEBRASKA.

Gigantic Spirals of Mineral Fashioned So Mathematically as to Be Easily Mistaken at First Glance For Works of Art.

Nobody knows with certainty what the so called "devil's corkscrews" really are. They are found by tens of thousands in Nebraska, most particularly in Sioux county, and some of them are as much as forty feet in height, without counting the gigantic "roots" presently to be described. Quartz is the substance of which they are made, but how they came to be imbedded, numbers of them together, in the sandstone cliffs of that region is more than anybody can tell, unless, perhaps, one theory, to be mentioned later, is to be accepted as correct.

You are traveling, let us say, on horseback through that part of the country, and, as often happens, you see, standing out from the face of a sandstone cliff, a gigantic spiral. If, as geologists have proved, the sandstone rock be chipped away a corkscrew shaped thing of quartz is exposed to view, fashioned so mathematically as to be easily mistaken at first glance for a work of art. The white spiral may be free, as a sculptor would say, or, in other cases, may be twined about a sort of axis, as a vine would run around a vertical pole.

Somebody awhile ago gave to these spirals the name "devil's corkscrews" for want of a better and as expressive of the mystery of their origin. Scientists discussed them in vain, and many theories were formed in regard to them. There were authorities who declared they were fossil burrows excavated in tertiary times by gophers of a huge and extinct species. And, to confirm this notion, the bones of some burrowing animal were actually found imbedded in the substance of one of the "screws." This seemed to settle the matter for awhile, until the controversy was started again by the discovery of the osseous remains, under like conditions, of a small deer. Nobody could assert that a deer was ever a burrowing animal, and so that notion had to be abandoned.

Other theorists declared that the "fossil twisters," as some folks called them, represented the prehistoric borings of gigantic worms that lived in the very long ago. Yet others suggested that they were petrified vines, though it was difficult to explain how or why the "poles" on which the alleged vines seemed in many cases to have been trained had been so admirably preserved, or, for that matter, originally erected.

In the midst of so many contradictory theories the problem seemed likely to defy solution indefinitely. The one that held out longest and gained most adherents was that of the extinct gophers. It accounted for the "root"—a shapeless appendage often nearly as big as the "twister" itself and attached to the lower end of the latter—which obviously, as it seemed, had been the nest of the rodent animal, the "corkscrew" representing the spiral hole by which it made its way to the surface of the ground. What could possibly be more easy to comprehend?

Professor E. H. Barbour, however, has declared—and his decision is accepted provisionally until somebody offers a better—that the corkscrews are of vegetable origin. They are, he asserts, the fossil remains of ancient water weeds of gigantic size, which grew millions of years ago on the bottom of a vast sheet of water that covered all of Nebraska. These must have been the biggest aquatic plants that ever existed, and when the huge lake that overflowed the region in question dried up the remains of many of the plants were left behind buried in the accumulated detritus at the bottom.

In the course of time—ages after the bottom of the ancient lake had been converted into solid rock—rivers plowed their way through the land, cutting this way and that and exposing to the view of the modern traveler on the faces of the cliffs the fossil casts of the prehistoric water weeds just as they stood when they grew hundreds of thousands and probably millions of years ago. Their tissues were replaced as they decayed by silica from the water, particle by particle, and thus, as if by magical means, their likenesses have been preserved for the wonder and admiration of the present survivors on the earth.

Such is the theory now pretty well accepted by scientists in regard to the origin of the "fossil corkscrews." Possibly it is not correct, but if otherwise there is room for the exercise of anybody's imagination in the consideration of this veritable romance of the ancient history of the world.—New York Herald.

WHOLE OR HALF TRUTHS.

Better be single in peace than married in war.

The rock of success isn't located in a field of roses.

The fellow who objects to discipline needs it the most.

You can inherit ability, but you've got to hustle for experience.

The optimist has an easy time of it. He smiles while others work.

It doesn't cost anything to say "good morning" even if it's raining.

Some folks ought to take their consciences out once in awhile for exercise.

Silence isn't always golden. The talker with something to say is worth a dozen keep stills.

The optimist who thinks that folks are civilized should yell "Fire!" to a crowded house and watch results.—From "Gumption," by N. C. Fowler, Jr.

GOOD MUSIC.

Its Value In the Home Is Not Sufficiently Recognized.

There's all the attention in the world paid, as a rule, to the books and magazines which are left in the paths of the younger members of the family, but the class of music played in the average family of culture is a disgrace.

In one home, where the children are brought up upon simplified forms of the classics and upon only the sweet, pure, wholesome stories that, in spite of pessimists, are still being written, not one child knows anything of the finer types of music. Where Shakespeare is a name known by everybody, his plays and those inimitable stories of his plays familiar objects upon the library table, Beethoven has practically never been heard of.

Some one has aptly called "ragtime" "the slang of music," and it is strange that parents who are particular in the extreme about the use of slang in the home laugh indulgently at the vigorous banging out of impossible melodies.

Ragtime has its place, there's no denying that, just as some slang passes into the English language under the stately name of "idioms." But it's not the music to be the main—perhaps the only—sort to be accustomed to.

Nothing develops tastes so definitely as environments. If fine books and pictures as well have their share in educating and in the bringing out of finer feelings—if, in a word, they are the root of culture—surely music, that most subtle of influences, has its share.

GIVING LUNCHEONS.

Etiquette to Be Observed on Formal and Informal Occasions.

In the formal luncheon, if the table is a handsome wood, without scratch or blemish, it may be left bare, using small doilies under the plates and dishes and a centerpiece. This gives an unusual opportunity to display rare embroideries, but the fine damask tablecloth is always in good taste.

When luncheon is announced the hostess asks her friends to follow her to the dining room without formality. The soup is served in two handled cups, the heavy roast is omitted generally, and few vegetables are served. The hostess may serve the salad, the dessert and the coffee, although these are more often served from the side.

At the informal luncheon tea may be served by the hostess with the teapot, sugar bowl, cream jug and cups and saucers neatly arranged on a large tray under a cloth, or the tray may be omitted, using only the cloth. Two or more courses may be served, all of the dishes arranged on the table and the second course, the sweets and cakes, placed on side tables.

A Sumptuous Automobile.

James E. Pilliod is the first man in Toledo, O., to own a gasoline automobile with a limousine body. The car was made in a Toledo factory, its construction requiring nearly a year. The machine, which has recently been turned over to the owner, is by far the handsomest automobile seen on the streets of Toledo. It has all the appointments of a first class passenger coach on a steam road, even to being heated and electrically lighted. It is also fitted with a speaking tube whereby the occupants can communicate with the chauffeur. The heating apparatus is especially ingenius, being so constructed that heat from the engine will pass into the car when a register is open and into the open air when the register is closed. The engine has four cylinders and generates thirty-five horsepower. Mr. Pilliod, who lately returned from an extended European trip, states that the car will compare very favorably with any he saw in Europe.

Thackeray's Apology.

Thackeray once wrote in a note to a friend, alluding to an incident occasioned by one of his articles in Punch: "I thought over the confounded matter in the railroad and wrote instantly on arriving here a letter of contrition and apology to Henry Taylor for having made what I see now was a flippant and offensive allusion to Mrs. Taylor. I am glad I have done it. I am glad that so many people whom I have been thinking bigoted and unfair and unjust toward me have been right and that I have been wrong, and my mind is an immense deal easier."

A Great Idea.

"My new play is sure to make a hit," said the great actress. "It gives me an opportunity to display twenty new gowns."

"Gracious!" exclaimed her friend. "How many acts?"

"Only four, but in one of them the scene's at a dressmaker's."—Philadelphia Press.

Blistered Linen.

To prevent blistering in linen, which is almost always due to bad starching, but occasionally to ironing the articles when too wet, each article must be well starched through, and when about to iron it it must be dampened evenly, but not wet. Use a hot iron. Collars and cuffs that have to be turned down should be fixed in the proper shape immediately after each one is ironed, for then the starch is still flexible.

Orange Salad.

Sour oranges may be utilized in a delicious salad. Slice the oranges not too thin and remove the skin, leaving the pulp in small triangular pieces. Serve on lettuce or crisp water cress, with French dressing or white mayonnaise. The little oranges called cumquats are very good indeed served in exactly the same way. Blanched English walnuts combined with such salads are a great addition.

A Slick Swindler.

A slick stranger succeed in swindling Messrs. Reading & Reading, the Williamsport coal dealers, out of nearly $20 a few days ago by passing on them a check for $25 which subsequently proved to be forgery, says the Sun. He walked in hurriedly and asked that a ton of coal be sent to a certain address, and offered a check purporting to be signed by W. D. Brooks, for the above amount, in payment. The transaction had a harmless and perfectly safe appearance as the delivery of the coal indicated a more or less permanent residence, so the request found ready acquiescence. But another person lived at the address given. The check proved to be a bold forgery, and the difference between the price of the coal and the face of the check a loss to the dealers. The stranger has not yet been apprehended.

Smallpox on Train.

Chicago, March 24.—Edward Jasper, a victim of small-pox, was intercepted by officers of the health department as he was walking through the crowd in one of the depots, just after alighting from a trans-continental passenger train. He was on his way from Los Angeles to Cincinnati, accompanied by Mrs. Jasper, to attend the funeral of the father of Mrs. Jasper. His wife and W. H. Bentley, conductor of the train, were taken to the isolation hospital with him. Jasper did not mingle with the other passengers on the train, but his wife, it is said, came in contact with them. All of the cars in the were fumigated and thoroughly disinfected.

Cure for Smallpox and Scarlet Fever.

Edward Welsh, of Orbisonia, claims that he can cure a bad case of smallpox in 48 hours and that he positively knows the remedy has cured many people. It is as follows: "Take one grain of digitalis and one grain of sulphite of zinc, dissolve both in four ounces of water, mix well and take a spoonful every hour for ten hours. For children, give one-half dose." This same remedy is also a cure for scarlet fever. Readers, cut this receipt out and preserve it.

Marking Linen.

How many women adhere to the old-fashioned method of marking linen with a new steel pen and marking ink? It is the simplest thing in the world to mark linen with a stencil and a brush. Each member of the family should have his own stencil, which does not cost much if only initials are used. The boy or girl at school will need the full name, which costs more. An entire wardrobe may be marked in half an hour's time by means of stencils, and the danger of the ink spreading is reduced to a minimum.

TURKEY PUZZLE OF LANDIS.

Indiana Congressman's $1,000 Investment Makes Him a Skeptic.

Representative Charles B. Landis of Indiana bought a farm near Delphi, Ind., last summer, says a Washington special dispatch to the New York World. The man who sold it to him advised him to raise bronze turkeys for the holiday markets.

"In two years you can make your turkeys pay for this place," he said. Mr. Landis invested $500 in a flock of turkeys—eight hens and a $250 gobbler. Another $500 was spent in building runways and pens for them.

One luckless morning two hens disappeared. The remaining six were each put on a sitting of eggs and all produced broods. When five weeks old the little fellows were turned out to scratch gravel. The whole flock, big and little, made a break for the wheatfield. The wheat was covered with dew and the chicks were a sadly bedraggled lot. That night all of the young turkeys died except three. The two hens which disappeared walked in two weeks later. One was followed by a brood of eleven and the other by nine—the finest looking young turkeys ever seen along the Wabash.

Mr. Landis is now making inquiries at the department of agriculture whether it is better to keep your turkeys penned up and lose all your money or turn them loose and make money.

New Name For an Ohio Town.

A meeting was held a few evenings ago and an organization was effected to change the name of Upper Sandusky, O. A petition will be presented to the common pleas court praying for the change, and it is believed the movement will meet with success, says an Upper Sandusky correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer. Three names are suggested, all abbreviations and adaptations of the present name—"Usando," "Upaan" and "Uppersan." The objection to the present name is the constant confliction with the city of Sandusky, causing much delay and annoyance in the miscarriage of mail, etc. Several years ago a corpse intended for Upper Sandusky was shipped to Sandusky, causing a postponement of the funeral.

What a "Hurricane" Is.

"Hurricane" is the old Spanish name for a West Indies cyclone, but it is used by modern meteorologists to designate a long continued wind of extreme violence. In Beaumont's scale the different winds are classed as "light," "gentle," "fresh" and "strong" breezes. The next is a "stiff" breeze, then a "strong" wind and then we strike the "gales." The "gales" run through three or four classes, the last merging into the "hurricane."

Mixed Wives.

In the early part of the last century there lived in an old New England town a Mr. Church, who in the course of his earthly life was bereft of four wives, all of whom were buried in the same lot. In his old age it became necessary to remove the remains to a new cemetery. This he undertook himself, but in the process the bones became hopelessly mixed. His "New England conecience" would not allow him, under the painful circumstances, to use the original headstones, so he procured new ones, one of which bore the following inscription:

"Here lies Hannah Church and probably a portion of Emily."

Another:

"Sacred to the memory of Emily Church who seems to be mixed with Matilda."

Then followed these lines:

"Stranger, pause and drop a tear;
For Emily Church hes buried here
Mixed in some perplexing manner
With Mary, Matilda and probably Hannah."

The Smart Youngster.

Did you ever contemplate a cunning youth on parade. He is a salve for sore eyes. The cunning youth is anywhere from 12 to 18 years and the older the variety the more cute he acts. No town or cross roads but has a few specimens of this remarkable manifestation of human nature. Most every one has contemplated them, but all who have not should do so—anthropology is an interesting study.

These entertaining anthropoid specimens can easily be found on the back seat at church or else lined up at the exit, in the gallery at the opera house, or on the street corners. They are appreciative of humor and giggle and snicker over their own outlandish antics. They imagine that they are much more interesting than whatever entertainments may be going on, but even in visiting a menagerie few care to spend all their time at the monkey cage. When a sermon or play is in progress and the anthropoids get busy, the remainder of the audience cannot but see their cute actions and the audience is undivided in the desire to fondle the cunning creatures with a bed slat or a nice large piece of rubber hose.

PHYSICIANS endorse the W. B. Erect Form corset. That's because the Erect Form is founded on the natural figure—assisting instead of hindering its fullest development. The Erect Form throws out the chest—flattens the abdomen—braces the back and rounds off hips and bust into graceful modish lines.

More than 40 different models. Each style designed for a different figure. Your dealer carries the Erect Form in stock at prices upward from $1.00.

STRANGE ADVICE!

Dr. G. G. Green gives alert personal attention to his great humanitarian contract.

¶In our Almanac for many years past we have given unusual advice to those afflicted with coughs, colds, throat or lung troubles or consumption. We have told them if they did not receive any special benefit after the use of one 75-cent size bottle of German Syrup, to consult their doctor. ¶We did not ask them or urge them to use a large number of bottles, as is the case in the advertising of many other remedies. Our confidence in German Syrup makes it possible for us to give such advice. ¶We know by the experience of over 35 years that one 75-cent bottle of German Syrup will speedily relieve or cure the worst coughs, colds, bronchial or lung troubles—and that, even in bad cases of consumption, one large bottle of German Syrup will work wonders. ¶New trial bottles, 25c.; regular size, 75c. ## PROBLEMS IN COLORS

WHITE IS COOL, YET ARCTIC ANIMALS AS A RULE ARE WHITE.

Why Are Land Birds Mostly Dark and Sea Birds, In Many Cases, White?—Why Have Nearly All Purple Blossoms Poisonous Properties?

In summer weather ladies, and men, too, when possible wear white. Why? To keep cool, of course, you will say.

If this be so, why, then, are almost all the creatures that live in arctic regions clothed in white? The usual reply is that the white color is for protective purposes—in order, in fact, to make them invisible to their enemies in the midst of the wastes of snow.

But, consider, again, is this reasonable? From whom does the polar bear need to hide? He has no enemies to fear. And as for the birds which assume a white plumage when they migrate north, surely they also have far fewer foes in the polar regions than when farther south.

Again, if white be a cool color this is surely another reason against the inhabitants of the coldest regions turning white at the approach of winter. It is easy to strengthen this argument. Visit the tropics, and you will find hardly any white animals or birds. In the very hottest regions of the globe not only is man, as a rule, black, but the birds and beasts are either very dark or else extremely brilliant in color. Of tropical birds the commonest colors run as follows: Brown, dark green and dark blue, emerald green, reds and yellows.

Speaking of the birds again, why is it that land birds are mostly dark hued while so many sea birds are white?

Here is another color puzzle. Almost all song birds are somber in hue, while the brightly colored species, such as the jays, the parrots and birds of paradise, have naturally harsh voices.

The colors of flowers and leaves offer numbers of interesting problems. No one quite knows why the prevailing tint of early spring flowers is either white or yellow. Yellow, indeed, holds its own to some extent all through the summer, but the typical color of summer blooms is pink, while as the autumn advances richer crimsons and all the rich, glowing hues of dahlias and chrysanthemums are seen.

Horticulturists have produced poppies of pretty nearly every shade under the sun, and with many other flowers they seem able to alter the colors almost as they please. Yet the blue rose, the black tulip and the green carnation seem as far off as ever they were in spite of constant efforts to arrive at them. Nearly three centuries ago Dutch gardeners imagined themselves on the verge of inventing a black tulip.

The colors of the blossom of fruit trees are limited to white, pink, bright scarlet and purple. The reason no one knows. Nor is it clear why nearly all plants with purple blossoms have poisonous properties. The deadly nightshade is an instance which will be familiar to all country readers.

It used to be said and many still imagine that intensity of color depends upon intensity of light. The brilliancy of a tropical landscape seems in some measure to bear this out. But any amount of arguments may be deduced against it. Rubies, opals and other exquisitely colored gems are dug from the depths of the earth.

The rays of the sun have never touched them. The pulp of some fruits is more richly tinted than the outer rind, while the crimson blood of animals is hidden from the light. What could be more rich and magnificent in color than the wings of many moths? Yet these are all night flying creatures.

Speaking of moths, it seems odd that there is no blue moth. Very few show even a touch or spot of blue. The colorings of butterflies present many problems, for there seems no order or method in their hues and markings, and a strange point is the absolute difference in these points between species otherwise closely allied.

Why do autumn leaves turn yellow? Here is a question which is more easily answered than some that have already been suggested. The popular reply is, "The frost does it." This is only partly correct. If a really hard frost were to happen early in autumn there would be no tints at all. All the leaves would turn brown at once. The really gorgeous colors are produced by a slow and gradual fall of temperature, of course, without too much wind or rain. The cold causes a chemical ferment, which attacks the color compounds in the cells of the leaf. It is those leaves which contain most sugar which oxidize most rapidly and of which, consequently, the color becomes most rich and brilliant.

A question which is often asked is, "Why do lobsters, shrimps and certain other similar shellfish turn red when boiled?" It seems that the black coloring matter which colors the shell of the lobster during life is an iron compound. We know that iron rust is red. The effect of boiling is practically to turn this iron compound in the lobster shell to a highly oxidized rust.

The dislike of certain creatures for certain colors is strange. If a number of earthworms be placed in an oblong box, of which one half is covered with red and the other with blue glass, they will with one accord crawl away from the blue light and take refuge under the red glass. Many other higher creatures share the same dislike to blue rays.—Pearson's Weekly.

LIFE INSURANCE.

Its Early Struggles and Reverses In This Country.

The origin of insurance in this country dates from 1752 and had its first beginning in Philadelphia.

The first company was the Philadelphia Contributionship For the Insurance of Houses From Losses by Fire, and its insignia was four clasped hands, which was its house badge. This mark may still be seen throughout eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey on old time houses. The company survived till 1847. In 1792 the first life insurance company was founded in the same city. It was called the Universal Tontine. The next year similar companies were started in Boston and in New York. Its avowed aim was "for the purpose of raising a fund upon lives to be applied to charitable and other uses." Its subscription books were opened on March 29, and five general agents were appointed.

Some business was done during the summer, but in November of that year a general meeting of the subscribers was called, and the idea of a general insurance company was suggested and met with approval. The proposition was referred to a committee, and at an adjourned meeting held at the statehouse on Nov. 12 it was resolved that "the Universal Tontine association be and is hereby changed from its original object and converted into a society to be called the Insurance Company of North America." Its first policy was issued to John Maxwell Nesbitt, its president, for $5,333.33. It wrote both fire and life insurance, but paid attention chiefly to the former and gradually dropped life insurance altogether.

In January, 1794, it considered the policy of insuring persons against capture by the Algerians and insured Captain John Collet "on his person against Algerians and other Barbary corsairs in a voyage from Philadelphia to London in the ship George Barclay, himself master, valuing himself at $5,000." The premium charged was 2 per cent. Two similar policies were issued, but the premium was increased to 5 per cent. Two similar policies were issued, approved, one on the life of John Holker, from June 6 to Sept. 10, for $24,000, at 1½ per cent premium, and one on the life of Albert Briois de Beaumez, for eighteen calendar months, in the sum of $5,000. The demand for insurance on life was light, and the business, which was finally abandoned by the first company, was not revived until 1820, when Hartford men took it up and kept it running till it gained the great prosperity of modern times.

Value of the Average Man.

Genius is a phenomenon; the average man is a law. He has seen Shakespeares and Goethes and Napoleons and Wagners rise and fall, and he goes on calmly, knowing that it is he and not they who are the race. Despise him, kick him as you will, the last word is with him. He is nature's favorite. Like a true mother, she loves her dull boy best. A Shakespeare was too much for her, but she saw to it that his faculty perished with him. He died, a wonder among men, and his family reverted to the average. Lest the abhorred thing should reappear in the course of generations the family presently died out. The case is typical. It is almost a commonplace of the science of heredity that the appearance of extraordinary talent in any branch of a family means the extinction of that branch.—London Standard.

A Little Vacation.

Conditions are changing in so many businesses that it would not be strange if the manufacturer had yet to plead for protection against the girl in her teens.

A young girl appeared at a large hat manufactory one Monday morning and asked for work. She was inexperienced, but they needed help badly, engaged her at once and took the time to teach her one department of the work.

She learned easily and very quickly, earned something the first day and in two days was making as much as any other girl in the room. They noticed that she seemed to enjoy the work and the prospect of good wages and were greatly surprised when she appeared at the office Friday night and desired to "settle up," saying that she was through work.

The manager asked if anything disagreeable had happened.

"Oh, no," the girl replied airily. "It's a real nice place to work, but I was only visiting in the city for a few days and thought I might make a little money. I'm going home tomorrow morning."—Youth's Companion.

Samuel Johnson and Women.

Of marriage in the abstract Johnson highly approved. "Every man," he said, "is a worse man in proportion as he is unfit for the married state." He approved of a man contracting a second marriage and considered it as a compliment to the first wife. He acknowledged, however, that he had once been on the point of asking Mrs. Johnson not to marry again. She might well have granted his request without any fear of being tempted to break her promise. Johnson ridiculed the idea of a man being unwilling to marry a pretty woman lest he should have cause for jealousy. "No, sir," he said, "I would prefer a pretty woman unless there are objections to her. A pretty woman, if she has a mind to be wicked, can find a readier way than another, and that is all." He had, in fact, made a profound study of women from every point of view. And yet Johnson never took women quite seriously and would not hear of their assuming an equality with men, either in mental or bodily pursuits.

ROOSEVELT ON METHODS!

Addresses the Members of the Keep Commission on Its Work.

"RED TAPE" PROBLEM

The Idea is to Reduce the Amount to a Minimum if Such be Possible

ASKS FOR SOME LEGISLATION

Washington, March 24.—President Roosevelt had an informal meeting last Tuesday evening at the residence of Gifford Pinchot, chief of the division of forestry, with the members of the Keep commission. The commission was appointed a year ago to study the business methods of the several departments of the government with a view to systematizing the work of the departments and reducing the amount of "red tape" to a minimum.

After discussing the work of the commission and its achievements up to this time the president delivered an address to the members in the course of which he paid a tribute to them for their disinterested efforts to improve the government service. His remarks were made public at the white house. In part the president said:

"I wish to express my very great appreciation of the work that you are doing. It would be a good thing for certain critics of our government to realize the amount of hard, disinterested work for the government represented in this gathering, to which I am now speaking. A work which must be in the immense majority of cases be its own reward, and therefore an ample reward; for there is nothing pleasanter than the consciousness of having done well a bit of work well worth doing.

"A year ago I appointed the Keep commission, because I had become convinced that the business methods of our government were by no means abreast of the times. While I think there is comparatively little corruption in the national government service, and while that little I intend to cut out or have cut out through other agencies than yours, it yet remains true that there is a good deal of duplication of work, a good deal of clumsiness of work, and above all, the inevitable tendency toward mere bureaucratic methods against which every government official should be perpetually on his guard—the tendency to regard not the case but the papers in the case as the all important matter with which to deal, and to feel a proud sense of duty performed if all those papers are appropriately docketed and referred and minutes made about them, and then referred back, without regard of what has become of the real fact at issue."

Referring to the work of the commission, the president said:

"I do not want a diagnosis of the case. I want a recommendation how to reach the case. I do not want merely to know that things are bad; I want to know what is bad and what is to be done to make it better, so that if legislation is necessary I can recommend it; so that if, as I hope will be true in the enormous majority of cases, the matter can be reached by executive regulation. I can see that I shall value the reports that I receive largely, not exclusively at all, but largely in proportion as they do not call for legislation.

There is nothing easier as all you know than to draw up an elaborate minute to show how well things would go on if some one else did something different. I want you, so far as possible, to recommend something that I can do, something that the heads of the departments can do so that we can ourselves put a stop to such at least of the evil that exists, remedy much at least of the shortcomings that exist."

Hundreds of Horses Dying in the Snow.

Reports continue to arrive to the effect that horses, both wild and tame, are still dying by the hundreds in the country surrounding Madeline, Cal. The heavy snows have robbed them of food, and in many instances prevented them from braking into new and better ranges.

Stock men south of Madeline say the suffering among the animals is very widespread, and that with the coming of spring there will be a revelation of great losses among the herds.

A number of stock men left Alturas a few days ago on snowshoes to round up a herd of snowbound horses. Only twenty seven animals out of a large band were found alive.

Eloped to New York State and Quietly Married.

The friends of Miss Emma L. Ward and Frank W. Nelson will be wonderfully surprised to know that they have been married.

They wanted it kept quiet and in order to do so they planned an elopement to New York State and on Tuesday evening Miss Ward went to Milesburg and boarded the train and Mr. Nelson buying a ticket from Bellefonte in that way fooled a crowd of curious people who had gathered at the train expecting to have lots of fun at the young couple's expense.

Tickets were bought for Corning, New York, at which city Miss Ward and Mr. Nelson were quietly married at 9 o'clock on Wednesday evening at the United Evangelical parsonage by the Rev. Paul Allen D. D.

After visiting several other cities in New York State they returned to Bellefonte Friday morning.

Miss Ward was employed at the Bush house for a number of years and is an accomplished young lady in housekeeping and will make an excellent helpmate through life. Mr. Nelson is a moulder by trade and is employed at the Lingle works. He is recognized as an industrious young man and first-class moulder.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson have fitted up a little home in Bellefonte and will immediately go to housekeeping. This paper joins in with their friends and wishes them a prosperous and happy journey through life.

Step from Snow Bank to Wild Flowers.

S. M. Leitzell, of Washington, D. C., formerly of Potter township, Centre County, who is now connected with the national weather bureau, writes that perphaps it might be of interest to know that Pikes Peak Signal Station (weather observatory) is 14147 feet above sea level; that snow falls there every month of the year, and that the water used for culinary purposes is obtained from convenient snow banks. Although the station is located on top of a mountain, the only obtainable wood is three miles away.

In the summer it frequently happens that one can step from a snow-drift (with one step) into blooming wild flowers.

The mountain itself might be considered a freak of nature, and the above are only a few of the peculiar things which are learned there.

Faneuil Hall Has Narrow Escape.

Boston, March 26.—Historic Faneuil hall and other less famous buildings in the market district narrowly escaped destruction from a fire which burned out the four story stone building at 12 and 13 Faneuil Hall square. It was only by reason of a favorable wind and the fact that the building stood a little apart from other property that the firemen were enabled after a three hours' fight with more than half the apparatus of the city to save other buildings in the district.
